
Contents

Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vii
Overview	1
1. Global employment trends	9
Recent developments	9
Globalization	12
The East Asian crisis	13
Regional trends	15
Asia	15
Transition economies of Central and Eastern Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States	18
Latin America and the Caribbean	20
Africa	24
Developed countries	25
Employment prospects	28
2. Globalization, technological change and demand for skilled labour	33
Introduction	33
Shift in demand for skilled labour	33
Skill shifts in manufacturing	35
New technology and demand for skilled labour	37
Changes in work organization and demand for multi-skilling	41
New work organization in developed countries	43
Changes in work organization in developing countries and implications for more training	44
Need for targeted training	46
What work now demands from employees	46
Rising wage differentials: Is there a skill gap?	48
Increasing wage differentials in transition economies and developing countries	51
Conclusions	52
3. Training systems: Adjusting to change	57
Introduction	57
Education, skill formation processes and training activities	58
School-to-work transition	59
Vocationalization of secondary education	65
Market failure and the need for intervention in skills development	67
Training systems: Pressures for change and the effectiveness of the response	68
Training systems	69
The "cooperative" system	69
Latin America	71

The "enterprise-based" system	73
Japanese system of low labour turnover	73
The voluntarist system	74
The "state-driven" system	76
The demand-led (East Asian) system	76
The state supply-led systems	77
Developing countries	80
Conclusions	82
4. Improving the efficiency and governance of training systems	85
Introduction	85
Social partnership: Public policy and tripartism	86
Information needs: Training policy, evaluation and research	88
Co-financing: Financing of training	91
Certification: Skill recognition, training and testing	96
Training for quality	100
Cost-effectiveness: Quick response and competition amongst training providers	101
Centralization and decentralization	101
Quasi-markets in public programmes	103
Some critical issues	107
Lifelong employability	107
Small firms, inter-firm networks and training	109
Conclusions	111
5. Impact of education and training on competitiveness and growth	115
Introduction	115
National competitiveness, international competition, skills and training	115
The role of education and skills in moving to higher value-added and technologically advanced products: Selected country and regional experiences	120
The experience of Singapore and the Republic of Korea	122
How did the governments anticipate changes in skill demand?	123
How did the East Asian economies make a successful transition?
Why were they better at picking winners?	124
South Asia: The case of India and Pakistan:
"Low-skill/low-technical-competence trap"?	126
India: Comparative performance of software and leather exports	128
Latin America: A region in the "grey zone" between the very fast and slow-growing developing countries	130
Training and aggregate employment	132
Conclusions	136
6. Women and training in the global economy	139
Introduction	139
Women, skills and global economic change	139
Education and training as a route to better employment for women	143
Gender inequalities in access to education and training	147
Access to education for women	147
Unequal access to vocational training	150

Unequal access to workplace-based training	152
Unequal access to lifelong learning	153
Unequal access to training programmes for the unemployed	154
Unequal access to new technology training	156
Training and the limited occupational choices of women	156
Female entrepreneurship and training	158
Conclusions	159
7. Training and the labour market: The impact on the employability of informal sector and vulnerable workers	163
Introduction	163
Training and labour market exclusion for low-skilled workers	163
Unemployment of low-skilled workers in the 1980s and 1990s	165
Training in the informal sector in developing countries	167
Characteristics of the informal sector	167
Linkages and survival: A study of three informal clusters	168
Returns to education and training in the informal sector	171
Recognizing the training needs of the informal sector	175
An integrated approach	177
Training and the exclusion of vulnerable groups from the labour market	178
Young workers	178
Training and labour market policies to counter youth unemployment	180
The long-term unemployed	183
The employability of the long-term unemployed	184
Designing policies to counter long-term unemployment	184
A range of policies for the long-term unemployed	185
Older displaced workers	188
Pressures towards exclusion for older workers	188
Persons with disabilities	192
Vocational rehabilitation and training	193
Partners in promoting the training and employment of persons with disabilities	195
Conclusions	196
Appendix to Chapter 7	197
8. Main conclusions: How training matters	201
Introduction	201
Role of education and training in competitiveness, growth and successful adjustment	202
Training reforms	203
Women and training	205
Informal sector	207
Vulnerable groups	208
Statistical annex	211

Figures

1.1. Real wages in manufacturing in selected transition countries	20
1.2. The informal economy and per capita GDP in Latin America, 1996	23
2.1. Annual growth rate of employment in selected occupational groups in selected countries, 1981-96	34
2.2. Employment in 19 OECD countries: Skilled and unskilled manufacturing industry, 1970-94	37
3.1. School-to-work transition: How different training systems operate	60
3.2. Vocational education enrolment as a percentage of secondary education enrolment	64
3.3. Vocational education enrolment rate in selected regions	64
5.1. Training, productivity and growth in the metal-mechanic industry: Bolivia	117
5.2. Growth of the information technology (IT) industry in India	128
5.3. Distribution of labour force by ISCED education level, various countries, 1996	134
6.1. Male and female labour force growth rates, 1980-96	140
6.2. Gender shares of total labour force growth, 1980-96	140
6.3. Part-time employment as a proportion of total employment for men and women, 1996	141
6.4. Share in part-time employment for men and women, 1996	142
6.5. Mean annual earnings of women as a percentage of mean annual earnings of men by level of education, 1994	145
6.6. Earnings from employment by education: Ratio of university level to lower secondary level, by gender, 1994	146
6.7. Number of students in third-level education per 100,000 inhabitants in high and medium industrialized countries, male and female, 1992	148
6.8. Number of students in third-level education per 100,000 inhabitants in developing countries, male and female, 1992	148
6.9. Ratio of vocational graduates (including apprenticeship) to population at typical age of graduation, 1994	151
7.1. Differences in the response of unemployment levels to expansion and contraction of GDP for low- and high-skilled workers in 19 OECD countries	166
7.2. Distribution of employment by education in different sectors, Thailand, 1994	171
7.3. Education level of persons employed in the informal sector by industry, Thailand, 1994	172
7.4. Education level of persons employed in the informal sector by industry, Paraguay, 1996	172
7.5. Education level of owner-operators in the informal sector by industry, Dar es Salaam, United Republic of Tanzania, 1995	173
7.6. Youth unemployment rate, several countries, 1996	179
7.7. Total and long-term unemployment rates in the European Union, 1990-96	183
7.8. Participation in job-related continuing education and training in previous year by age group, early 1990s	189

Tables

1.1. Rate of unemployment in different regions of the world	10
1.2. Growth rates of employment and labour force	10
1.3. World output growth	11
1.4. Annual world trade growth, 1980-98	12
1.5. Net annual private capital inflows to developing countries	13
1.6. Labour market indicators for selected Asian and Pacific economies	17
1.7. Labour market indicators for selected transition countries	19
1.8. Labour market indicators for selected Latin American and Caribbean countries	21
1.9. Urban unemployment rates by income level, 1994	22
1.10. Latin America: Employment in the informal and the formal economy in selected countries (percentage of non-agricultural labour force)	22
1.11. Labour market indicators for selected African countries	24
1.12. Labour market indicators for selected developed countries	26
1.13. Employment and unemployment in selected OECD member countries, 1970-97	27
2.1. Employment in high-skilled manufacturing industry as a percentage of total manufacturing employment	38
2.2. Annual growth rate of employment in selected manufacturing sectors in some developing countries	39
2.3. High-performance work practices with at least half of core workers involved, 1997	43
2.4. Diffusion of new work practices and their impact on performance in the United Kingdom's engineering sector	47
2.5. Changes in the wage distribution within selected OECD countries, 1980-95	50
3.1. Percentage of upper secondary students enrolled in public and private general and vocational education: Selected countries	65
3.2. Training systems	70
3.3. Percentage of employees at various ability levels	74
3.4. Changes in training practices: Selected countries	79
3.5. Changes in training in the Russian Federation: Selected years	80
5.1. Share of technologically advanced goods in manufacturing exports	121
5.2. Mean years of schooling, 1960-90: East Asian region in comparative perspective	121
5.3. Quality of schooling inputs, 1960-90: East Asian region in comparative perspective	122
5.4. Human development indicators	127
5.5. Average annual growth of productivity and employment: Selected countries	131
5.6. Unemployment rate of low education group divided by rate of high group	135
6.1. Distribution of male and female apprentices in Germany, 1995	150
6.2. Ratio of women to men among employers and own-account workers by region, 1970-90	158
7.1. Informal labour force, various countries	167