

Contents

Preface	iii
Introduction	1
The communications sector and the globalization of the economy	1
1. The liberalization and globalization of postal and telecommunications markets	3
1.1 The structural and regulatory evolution of national Posts	3
1.1.1 The changing nature of public services	3
1.1.2 Restructurings of varying importance	6
1.1.2.1 The first steps towards privatization within the context of controlled liberalization	6
1.1.2.2 The cautious liberalization of the postal sector	6
1.2 The structural and regulatory adaptation of telecommunications operators	10
1.2.1 A strategic sector of economic globalization	10
1.2.2 The adaptation of operators to the global market	12
1.2.2.1 The beginnings of liberalization	12
1.2.2.2 The global wave of deregulation	13
1.3 The European Union's policy for the liberalization of postal and telecommunications services	19
1.3.1 The EU approach to telecommunications	19
1.3.2 The EU approach to the postal services	19
1.4 The multilateral framework: Agreement on the international liberalization of telecommunications services	20
1.5 The social dimension of the new forms of regulation	21
1.5.1 The role of communications in social and economic development	21
1.5.2 The social aspects of the regulation of postal and telecommunications markets ..	22
1.5.3 The definition and respect of the universal service	23
1.5.4 The universal service in the European Union	24
1.5.5 The universal service throughout the world	24
2. The profile of employment in the context of structural and regulatory adjustment	30
2.1 Introduction	30
2.2 Employment among traditional operators	31
2.2.1 The traditional telecommunications operators	31
2.2.2 Employment in public postal operators	34
2.2.3 The management of staff reductions in the restructuring process	36
2.3 The sources of job creation	38
2.3.1 The creation of employment in the economy as a whole	38
2.3.2 Employment trends among traditional operators using incomplete national infrastructure	39

2.3.3	Job creation in the new services and new entrants	39
2.4	Future employment prospects	48
2.5	The impact of structural and regulatory changes on the legal status of employees and occupations	49
2.5.1	Changes in occupations: A creative destruction	50
2.5.2	The legal status of employees: A destructive erosion	50
2.6	The impact of structural and regulatory changes on female employment	54
	Women in management positions	55
2.7	A new approach to recruitment and training	56
3.	The impact of structural and regulatory changes and globalization on labour relations ..	60
3.1	Introduction	60
3.2	The role of the social partners	61
3.2.1	Social actors in search of new strategies	61
3.2.2	Trade unions and globalization: Trade union strategic alliances?	63
3.2.3	Trade unions and the information society	65
3.3	The new forms of consultation, participation and collective bargaining	66
3.3.1	New trends in collective bargaining	66
3.3.1.1	The centralization/decentralization movement in management and collective bargaining	67
3.3.1.2	The new subjects of collective bargaining	68
3.3.2	The new forms of consultation and participation	69
3.3.2.1	Realistic and/or constructive participation	69
3.3.2.2	Liberalization as a source of social tension	72
	Gaps in representation and consultation in the new entrants	75
4.	Remuneration and other conditions of work	77
4.1	Introduction	77
4.2	Remuneration	77
4.2.1	Telecommunications	77
4.2.2	The postal sector	80
4.3	The impact of regulatory and structural changes and globalization on working time ...	82
5.	The role of the ILO	85
	Suggested points for discussion	87
	Bibliography	89
 Table
	Changes in employment levels in telecommunications enterprises in selected OECD countries	32

Figures

1.	Telecommunications employment in Asia (total number of staff)	40
2.	Compound annual growth rate of employment in Asia, 1984-94 (%)	41
3.	Telecommunications employment in Latin America (total number of staff)	42
4.	Compound annual growth rate of employment in Latin America, 1984-94 (%)	43
5.	Telecommunications employment in southern Africa (total number of staff)	44
6.	Compound annual growth rate of employment in southern Africa, 1984-94 (%)	44
7.	Total number of staff in telecommunications services and their evolution (1991-95) . . .	45
8.	Total number of staff in postal services and their evolution (1991-95)	46
9.	Employment in new telecommunications operators in the European Union (1995)	47
10.	Proportion of women employed in public postal operators in 1990 and 1995 (European Union)	55
11.	Female employment as a share of total employment among global integrators in 1990 and 1995 (European Union)	56
12.	Framework for analysing the impact of globalization on industrial relations	61