

Table of Contents

Preface by Padmanabh Gopinath	v
1. Labour institutions in India's development by T. S. Papola and Gerry Rodgers	1
I. Perspectives on labour institutions	1
II. Approaches to labour institutions and development in India ..	7
III. Insights and issues for the future	13
2. Labour institutions and economic development: The case of Indian industrialisation by T. S. Papola	17
I. Introduction: Approach and framework	17
II. Labour supply to industry: Social structure and mobility	19
III. Marketing of labour: Modes and institutions for recruitment ..	23
IV. Commitment and efficiency of industrial labour: Institutional mechanisms for disciplining workers	29
V. Unions, employers' organisations and government intervention	34
VI. Labour adjustments in technological change and restructuring	38
VII. Conclusion	41
3. Labour institutions and the development process in Kerala by K. P. Kannan	49
I. Introduction	49
II. The historical dimension	51
III. Sustainability of current labour market strategies	69
IV. Labour and development in Kerala: Some comments on the future prospects	80

4. Institutional interventions in the labour market in Bombay's manufacturing sector
by L. K. Deshpande	87
Introduction	87
I. Labour market outcomes	89
II. Union intervention	95
III. Legislative intervention	101
IV. Management response and other policy interventions affecting the labour market	110
V. Facing new challenges	118
5. The formation of rural labour markets in India
by Sheila Bhalla	125
Introduction	125
I. Some aspects of recent Indian experience	126
II. The identification of States in India according to the degree to which rural labour markets have formed	129
III. Consequences and causes of varying degrees of labour market development	135
IV. Summing up	157